Job Analysis and Description

Week 2 – Session 5

Don't forget to tap in

Our responsibilities:

- Understand why students aren't attending.
- Provide support to help you succeed.
- Be compliant with regulations and educational policies.
- Report students who are not attending to UKVI.

Your responsibilities:

- Use your own ID card to register your attendance.
- Be familiar with and follow institutional policies and legal regulations.

- !! Do NOT tap in on behalf of other students. This can result in a violation of visa conditions and/or institutional policy and procedures.
- !! Do NOT give your student ID card to someone else to let them into the library or other campus buildings as this is an offence under institutional regulations.

Extensions & Deferrals – What You Need to Know

-  Deferring may delay course progression or graduation.
- Tier 4/Student Visa holders: Deferring may affect Post Study Visa eligibility.
- For visa advice, contact: visahelp.io@coventry.ac.uk

Last week – Refresher

- Based on your learning of HRM last week, what can you share about the following:
 - What is HRM? What are the key areas/topics associated with HRM?
 - What is recruitment?
 - What is selection?
 - How does the content you learned last week relate to the “bigger picture” of resource management.

Job Analysis

- Job analysis is the systematic process of determining the skills, duties, and knowledge required for performing jobs in an organization.
- \(619\) What is job analysis and its purpose? – YouTube

Job Analysis: A Basic Human Resource Management Tool

Job Analysis Methods

- Questionnaires
- Observation
- Interviews
- Employee recording
- Combination of methods

Questionnaires

- Advantages:
 - Typically, quick and economical
- Potential problems:
 - Employees might lack verbal skills
 - Employees might exaggerate the significance of their tasks.

Observation

- Analyst watches worker perform job tasks and records observations
- Used primarily to gather information emphasizing manual skills.
- Difficult when mental skills are dominant in a job.

Interviews

- Interview both employee and supervisor.
- Interview employee first, helping him or her describe duties performed.
- After interviews, analyst normally contacts supervisor for additional information.

Employee Recording

- Employees describe daily work activities in a diary or log.
- Valuable in understanding highly specialized jobs.
- Problem: Employees might exaggerate job importance

Combination of Methods

- Analysts usually use more than one method.
- Clerical and administrative jobs (example):
 - Questionnaires supported by interviews and limited observation.
- Production jobs: Interviews supplemented by extensive work observation.

Job Design Concepts

- Process of determining specific tasks to be performed, the methods used in performing these tasks, and how a job relates to other work in an organization.
- Methods:
 - Job enrichment – Greater challenges
 - Job enlargement – Increasing the number of tasks at the same level.
 - Job rotation – moving from one job to another.
 - Re-engineering – Redesigning/coming up with something new.

Job Design @CIPD

- Go to the link below to the CIPD factsheet on Job Design.
- <https://www.cipd.org/uk/knowledge/factsheets/job-design-factsheet/>

Job Description

- Document that states:
 - Tasks
 - Duties
 - Responsibilities
- Content includes:
 - Job identification
 - Job analysis date
 - Job summary
 - Duties performed
 - Job specification

Job/Person Specification

- A job/person specification, or job spec, is a list that defines the skills and qualities that a company requires for a position.
- Job specifications can help employers, and HR professionals determine which skills and qualities are important when assessing candidates.
- It can help prospective applicants establish whether they possess the necessary experience, education and personality traits to apply for a particular role.
- Understanding more about the various components and details can help organisations create an effective job listing that attracts the most qualified applicants.

Watch

- Go to the link below (or see Aula) and watch the video on job descriptions and job specifications.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=enDer02UryY>

Individual activity – 20 minutes

- *Find a job description and job specification for the type of job you would like to have after you graduate or your “ideal” job.
- Share key JD and JS information about the job with the rest of the class.

Competencies and Competency Modeling

- Competencies refer to an individual's capability to orchestrate and apply combinations of knowledge, skills, and abilities consistently over time to perform work successfully in the required work situations.
- Competency modeling specifies and defines all the competencies necessary for success in a group of jobs that are set within an industry context.

What Is The Objective Of A Competency Model?

- Improve productivity
- Manage effective performance
- Control succession planning
- Ensure a unified corporate identify of an organization, which ultimately leads to a homogenous working environment.
- Cohesively link all the HR systems ensuring all HR Functions are well integrated.

Top Management Competencies Profile

Level 2: Mid Management Competencies Profile

Level 3: Non Managerial Competencies Profile

The Use of a Competency Model

- Hire new employees by using assessments and other selection procedures that measure the competencies.
- Train employees by creating courses aimed at the development of certain competencies.
- Evaluate the performance of employees by structuring the appraisal instrument around the competencies.
- Promote employees by using the competencies to establish promotion criteria.
- Develop employee careers by using the competency models to guide the choice of job assignments and make other career choices.
- Manage employee information by using the competency models to record and archive employee skill, training, and job experience
