What does Strategic planning mean?

- Strategic planning is a process in which organisational leaders determine their vision for the future as well as identify their goals and objectives for the organisation.
- The process also includes establishing the sequence in which those goals should fall so that the organisation is enabled to reach its stated vision.

Strategic Planning

- Four steps:
 - Determination of the organisational mission
 - Assessment of the organisation and its environment
 - Setting of specific objectives or direction
 - Determination of strategies to accomplish those objectives

Strategic Planning/Implementation Process

Basic Model of Strategic Planning

- Mission

- purpose or reason for the organization's existence. It defines an organization by answering questions like
 - Who we are,
 - What we do,
 - How we do it and
 - For whom we do it

- Vision

- describes what the organisation would like to become in future

- Objectives

- results of planned activity

Environmental Scanning

- the monitoring, evaluating and disseminating of information from the external and internal environments to key people within the organization
- SWOT analysis: simple way to conduct environmental scanning
- There are 2 environments to assess
 - Macro and Micro

The Components of a Company's Macro and Micro-Environment

The PESTEL framework

The PESTEL framework categorises environmental factors into six key types:

Political

Economic

Social

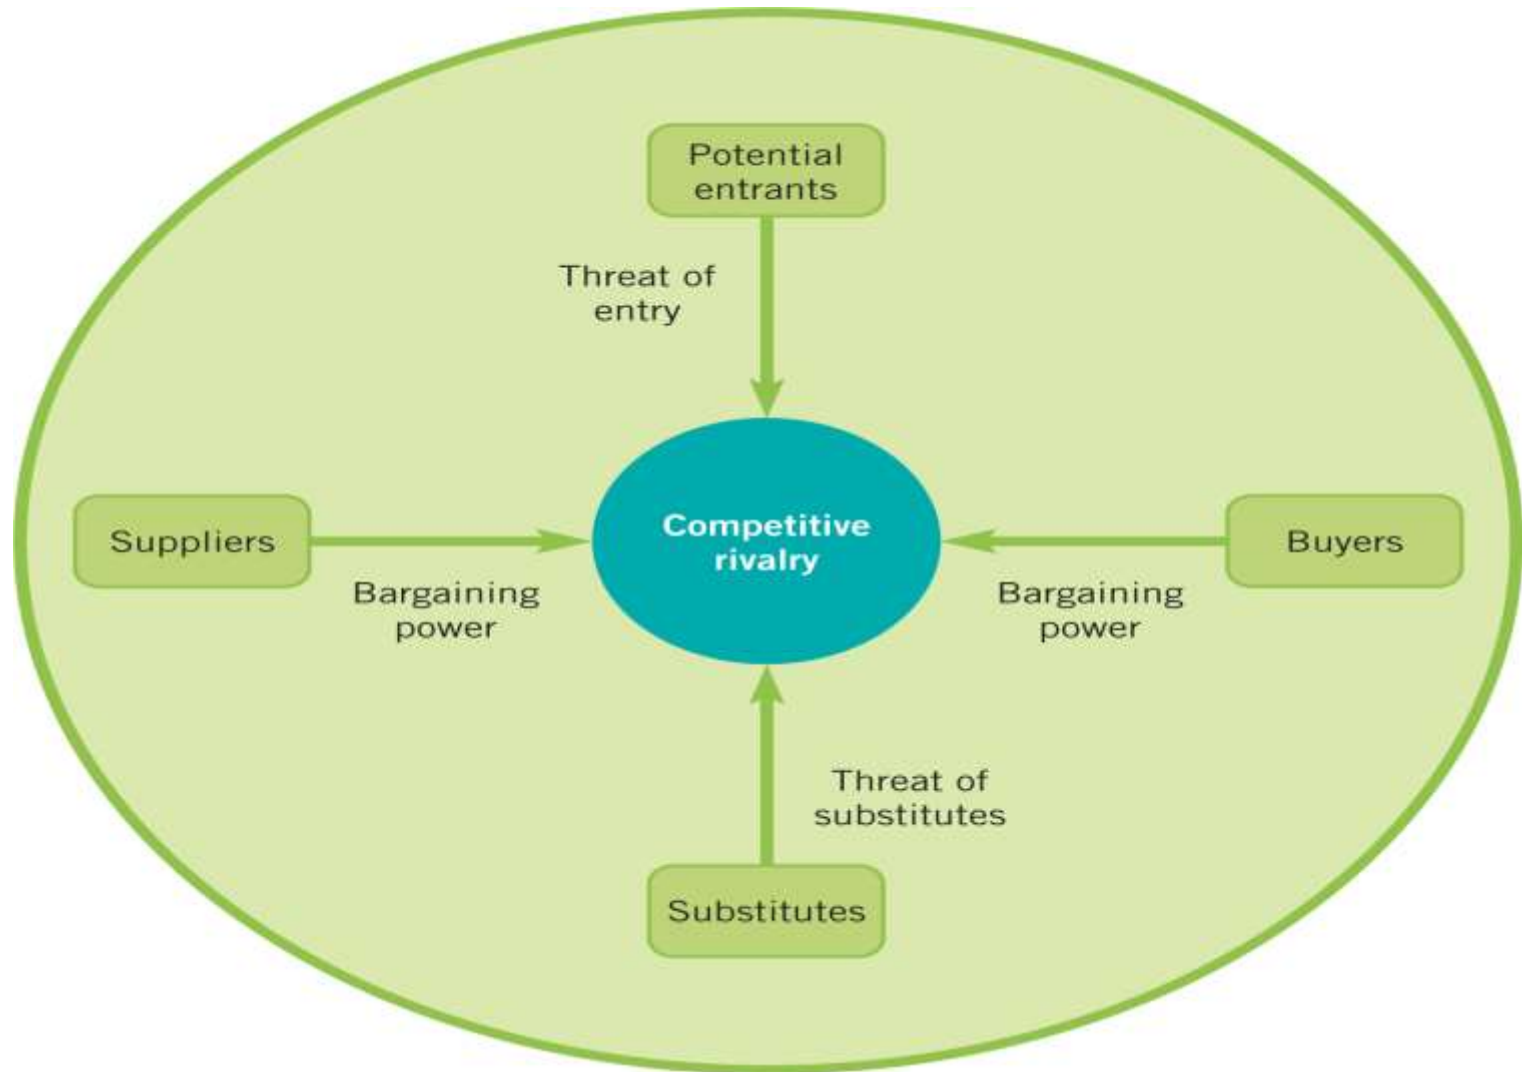

Technological

Ecological

Legal

PESTEL helps to provide a list of potentially important issues influencing strategy. It is important to assess the impact of each factor.

Team activity – 40 minutes

- Place yourselves in teams of 3.
- We have just looked at key components of strategy relating to most medium to large organisations. Based on the information you have just learned, detail the strategic elements of a specific organisation operating within the fast fashion industry.
- In order to do this, you will have to understand the macro/micro environment the business operates in, its SWOT and mission/vision statements.
- Share your research with the rest of the class.
- Ideally, your research should be presented using a mind map format and shared with the rest of the class.

HR SWOT ANALYSIS

What is Workforce Planning?

- the process for estimating the required workforce to meet future production/service requirements and the development of strategies to meet those requirements (for a balanced workforce)
- “At its simplest, effective workforce planning ensures you will have a workforce:
 - of the right size
 - with the right skills and diversity
 - organised in the right way
 - within the budget that you can affordto deliver the services you need to provide the best patient care.”

Human Resource Planning Process

Phases of Workforce Planning

- 1.Short term - ensuring there is sufficient staff to cope with the expected workload, i.e. rostering
- 2.Medium term - small adjustments i.e. re-evaluate your requirements for any vacancy, e.g. skill mix
- 3.Long term - manpower planning whereby decisions are taken in the longer term regarding staffing i.e. due to service change or development
- 4.Operational - decisions taken about the deployment of staff that are actually on duty

Importance of Workforce Planning

- identify shortages and surpluses and prevent staffing crises
- define tasks and roles and encourage teamwork
- contribute to ensuring customer safety by having the right staff skills in place to deliver effective customer care
- identify drivers of both demand and supply
- establish workforce education and training needs

Availability Forecast

Determination of:

- Whether firm will be able to secure employees with necessary skills
- Sources from which to obtain employees

Shortage of Workers Forecasted

- Innovative recruiting
- Compensation incentives

Surplus of Employees

- When a comparison of requirements and availability indicates a worker surplus will result, most companies look to alternatives to layoffs, but downsizing may ultimately be required

Succession Planning

- Process of ensuring that qualified persons are available to assume key managerial positions once the positions are vacant
- Goal is to help ensure a smooth transition and operational efficiency
