What is Marketing?

Marketing is a process by which companies create value for customers and build strong customer relationships in order to capture value from customers in return.

What is Marketing?

● Marketing is all around you, in good old traditional forms and in a host of new forms, from websites and mobile phone apps to videos and online social media.

Understanding the Marketplace and Customer Needs

Needs are states of felt deprivation.

Wants are the form human needs take as they are shaped by culture and individual personality.

Demands are human wants that are backed by buying power.

Understanding the Marketplace and Customer Needs

Market offerings are some combination of products, services, information, or experiences offered to a market to satisfy a need or want.

Marketing myopia is focusing only on existing wants and losing sight of underlying consumer needs.

Understanding the Marketplace and Customer Needs

Exchange is the act of obtaining a desired object from someone by offering something in return.

Marketing actions try to create, maintain, and grow desirable exchange relationships.

Understanding the Marketplace and Customer Needs

Customer Value and Satisfaction

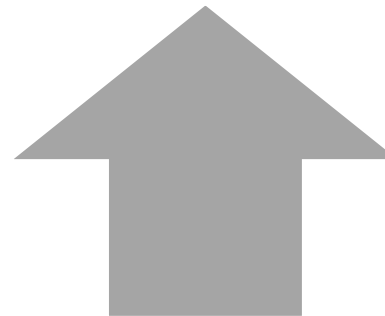

Customers

- Value and satisfaction

Marketers

- Set the right level of expectations

Understanding the Marketplace and Customer Needs

A market is set of actual and potential buyers and current and future suppliers of products and services, both complimentary goods and substitutes.

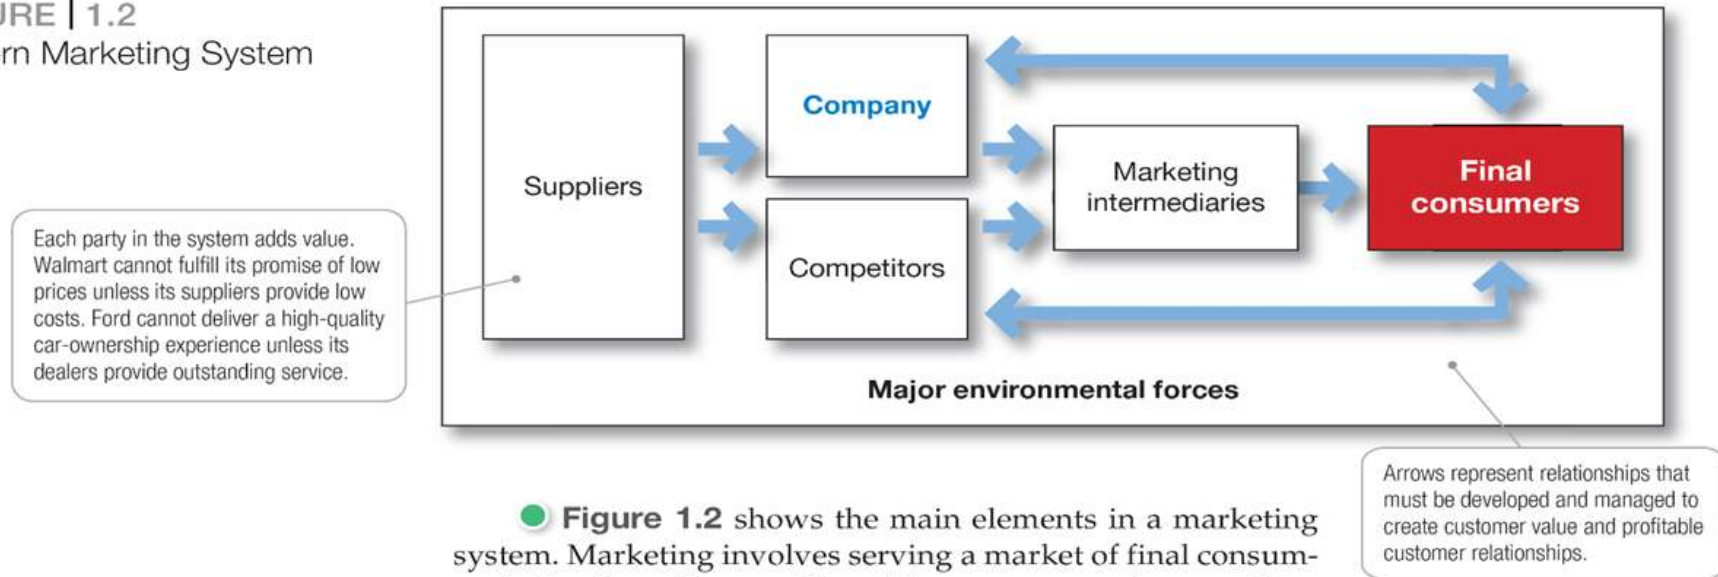

Consumers market when they:

- search for products
- interact with companies to obtain information
- make purchases

A Modern Marketing System

● Figure 1.2 shows the main elements in a marketing system. Marketing involves serving a market of final consumers in the face of competitors. The company and competitors research the market and interact with consumers to understand their needs. Then they create and exchange market offerings, messages, and other marketing content with consumers, either directly or through marketing intermediaries. Each party in the system is affected by major environmental forces (demographic, economic, natural, technological, political, and social/cultural).

TASK 1.

1. What is the macro business environment?

2. In context of marketing, name changes that have accrued in the business environment in recent years? Which of them do you consider the most important? Why do you think so?

THE WORLD IS CHANGING, HUMANS ARE CHANGING...

- cultural, political and economic globalization
- unification of culture, behaviors, human needs
- the increasing need for individuality among individuals
- increasing of people's awareness, eg in the field of civil rights and freedoms,
- equality between women and men
- increase in people's expectations towards the state, government, enterprises and social organizations
- young generation, generation Y, generation Z
- political and religious conflicts
- terrorism
- aging society

The World is changing, humans are changing...

- development of technologies, especially information technology - the Internet
- fast, cheap transport
- mobility of people, labor resources
- giant corporate development
- permanent striving to increase production and sales
- corruption, scandals, fraud
- promotion of consumerism
- sales strategies, e.g. perceived aging of products, planned aging
- too much advertising marketing and promotion
- decrease of confidence in enterprises, products, media, government and politicians

The World is changing, humans are changing...

- degradation of the natural environment
- drastic reduction in the number of natural resources
- the greenhouse effect
- decreasing amount of drinking water
- deteriorating human health, civilization diseases: e.g. diabetes, cancer, obesity
- low-quality food
